RDA (Towers)

Now that the national libraries have set an implementation date for RDA, is it time to discuss matters relating to it? For example:

Guidelines for MOBIUS libraries to implement it?

In any case, there will be records from copy with either AACR or RDA for some time, as there are already. The display of the 336-338 fields doesn't make much sense, for example <http://searchmobius.org/record=b25864824~S0>.

Should something be done, even suppressing display of those fields for now?

How about the option to put the GMD in non-book records that lack it? However clearly the public display may distinguish between printed books and e-books, how about display for staff? Will Sierra show clear distinctions? If we get batches of e-book records from vendors without the [electronic resource] GMD, and those records don't get much local review, there will potentially be confusion when staff search the print versions of those titles.
